Clarifying new housing regulations

by Arlene Surprenant

Several points dealing with new tenant regulations for low to moderate income housing were clarified by EOC Deputy Assistant Secretary Bob Pyne in a telephone interview last Friday.

Under the new regulations, which are currently in the drafting stage, at least 85 percent of the Chapter 705 homes will have local preference. The other 15 percent should be filled by racial minorities, either from Wilmington or the greater Boston area, Pyne said. It will be up to the Wilmington Housing Authority to make every effort to reach a goal of minority occupancy, he added, stressing that in no way should this be considered "a quota system."

"We're just trying to reconcile local preference with affirmative action responsibilities... and (trying to) preserve local preference under the law," Pyne said. If EOC doesn't take steps to tighten up the regulations, he added, the courts may rule local preference unconstitutional and eliminate it entirely.

Pyne made a special point of saying that regulations regarding veterans will not change; veterans will continue to get preference.

"This has been misunderstood by some housing authorities," Pyne said.

The new regulations are expected to become official sometime in January. They will then go into effect six months from the date they are accepted. All state housing authorities will have to abide by them and the old regulations will not be allowed to be grandfathered into housing that is underway, Pyne added.

Subdivision proposal sparks concern for old Middlesex Canal

A subdivision hearing at the Wilmington Town Hall on Tuesday evening drew more than 90 persons, many of them neighbors of the proposed site, off Chestnut Street near the old Middlesex Canal.

Planning board hearings on subdivisions are concerned with engineering and zoning questions. The arguments presented before the planning board Tuesday night were mainly about water problems, which is the concern of the conservation commission.

There are 27 houselots in the proposed subdivision. One of them is unbuildable and will not conform to planning board regulations, said Chairman Anthony Gentile. The others will be considered, and there will be a decision in about two weeks.

This will be the first residential subdivision in Wilmington to be served by sewer mains, engineer Erich Nitzsche told the planning board. There will be no on-site septic systems.

Nitzsche described the pond, called Patch's Pond, once known as Taylor's Pond, and the plans he had developed to control the water. He described the heavy peat deposit at the foot of Floradale Avenue, where the peat is 20 feet deep. The only wetland crossing in the subdivision, he said, would be on a street to be called Cushing Drive. He said that he expects the conservation commission to issue orders to clear up the pond, which has a lot of logs and old shopping carts.

The pond, he said, "serves the subdivision" in that part of the waters of the pond will be a part of the back of five houselots.

Property on the easterly side of the old Middlesex Canal may be sold, he said, to Sweetheart Plastics, which owns a nearby warehouse. There could not be any additional industrial building without rezoning, Nitzsche said, and he doubted that would happen.

More than 25 persons spoke in the 90-minute hearing. The heaviest applause was for Frances Verplank of Winchester, a member of the Middlesex Canal Association. She referred to the canal as a national monument. She was concerned for the preservation of the canal, and wanted the old towpath to be protected.

Arthur Spear of Burlington Avenue spoke of Taylor's Pond, which he had researched while in college. He told the board that it had been changed in contour by Taylor, many years ago. (Mr. Spear was correct. The Town Crier had forgotten that in the story of a week ago about the canal. Ed.)

Dick Wilson, aide to Rep. Miceli, spoke at some length, concerning traffic, the water table, and the

'Lost Colony' resident cites problems

by Arlene Surprenant

"I want to belong to Wilmington, but it's so hard," Virginia Road resident Pat Reeder told a subdued audience Monday morning, Dec. 30.

The audience, consisting of members of the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA), residents of both North Reading and Wilmington, architects, and media personnel, was present at a state public hearing at Deming Way to give input on eight low to moderate income homes proposed for the Virginia Road - St. Paul Street areas.

The hearing was called to allow EOC a chance to make a determination on the proposed project, depending on how well the WHA meets several criteria. The single family homes must not be in excess of 100 units and must be compatible in design and layout with the neighborhoods where homes are to be located.

Concerns expressed were similar to those reiterated at previous WHA meetings both in Wilmington and North Reading.

Reeder, the only resident on Virginia Road (reported Lost Colony area) on the North Reading border, cited several problems she's had in the past eight years. She pointed to a feeling of isolation living in an area where services are divided between two towns and blasting in a nearby gravel pit is damaging her home. She said she has stopped paying her water bill as she doesn't get any service from

Building committee tackles hot issues in a cold room

by Arlene Surprenant

The night of January 6 was one of those nights for the Permanent Building Committee (PBC). Nothing, it seemed, was meant to go smoothly, as members clashed and renovation problems continually cropped up. All of this in a frigid room since (we were told) the heat was turned off at 8 p.m.

Outgoing chairman Diane Allan was out to protect the town's interests. Newly elected chairman Bernie LaVita, along with architect Wilson Rains, wanted to show "good faith" toward the contractor (Sciaba Construction Co.) in several instances. The other members were somewhere in the middle.

One of the biggest issues members had to face was a change in plans in the four phase Progress Construction Schedule, approved that same night.

Work in four high school areas - the small cafe, the custodian's office, and two smaller rooms - originally slated for Phase B will have to be delayed until June as the rooms are presently being utilized and can't be released to the contractor.

A problem arose when Town Counsel Alan Altman wanted to require the contractor to sign a letter he dictated to Allan "so that there's no claim for an extension of time for this change." The letter would legally protect the town, said Allan, and verify the change was made without the prior approval of the PBC.

Discussion on the letter was heated.

"There's going to be a battle (with the contractor)," predicted LaVita, as he objected to the wording of the letter. "I'm mad looking at it," he said angrily.

Allan pointed out that Altman had been "burnt" before in similar cases and the town should have some sort of protection in the form of a legal document.

"If we give him (Sciaba) this letter, it's open warfare," said Rains.

"I can't believe that attitude," Allan retorted. "We're negating part of the contract and you're taking it so lightly."

PBC member Bob Soper, who agreed the language of the letter was "very inflammatory," tried to inject a note of reason.

"I think we have to legally protect ourselves, but we have to do it diplomatically," he said.

In the end, a decision was made to make the work a change order to be done in Phase D of the project. Rains said he would ask for a letter from Sciaba accepting the change and incorporating it into the last phase. Then he will show the letter to Altman for his approval.

A requisition submitted by Sciaba for approximately $43,000 for roofing materials next came under fire. Several problems surrounded the payment request.

Since Sciaba was late in submitting the December requisition, Town Treasurer Marion Murphy is still in the process of paying that bill. It would be an imposition to ask her to pay another requisition so soon, said Allan. Sciaba had requested PBC approval for the new requisition so soon because he was making an effort to get back on a monthly schedule (requisitions are traditionally submitted at the beginning of the month, according to Allan). Also, the necessary insurance certificates did not accompany the requisition to show the materials have been insured against theft.

Allan was furious when both LaVita and Rains suggested approving the request and then explaining to the contractor the money might not be forthcoming right away because of short notice and municipal cash flow problems. Since the material had already been bought and is being stored in an off-site trailer, they felt they should show "good faith" and reimburse the contractor as soon as possible.

"I would just like someone looking out for Wilmington for a change," said an angry Allan, adding that "we're always showing good faith."

She refused to sign anything until she saw the insurance certificates. The PBC voted not to approve the requisition.

Another problem dealt with the storage of salvage equipment. The present storage room under the high school "is bulging," according to Allan, and there is little room to store other equipment as it's replaced with new.

This problem was brought home Friday when Athletic Director Jim Gillis took steps to hire a company to move and store gym lockers slated for demolition. Recently, $3,000 had been spent on new boys' lockers and Gillis didn't wish to see them destroyed. Supt. of Public Buildings Roy McClanahan said they would be looking at the same problem with home economics and science equipment in the near future.

It was also brought to PBC members' attention that ceilings in the training room and the gymnasium room in the new gym may be too low for athletes who need more clearance. This will be looked into as soon as possible while the "gym is under construction."

Finally, Allan questioned why all structural steel was not ordered at one time. Though the steel will arrive January 27, Allan bemoaned the fact that much time will be lost while the weather remains relatively good.

The next PBC meeting will be held Tuesday, January 21, at 7:30 in the Town Hall.

Bloodmobile in Wilmington Jan. 15

Did you know that: You can donate blood every 56 days?

Slightly less than a pint of blood is taken from a donor (most adults have an average of 10 to 12 pints).

And that more than 10 million units of blood are donated each year in the United States?

Individuals in the Wilmington area will have an opportunity to be a part of a nationwide volunteer program when the Regional Health Center in Wilmington (RHWC) hosts a Community Blood Drive on Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The blood drive is co-sponsored by the Wilmington Rotary, the Kiwanis, Lions Club, and the Friendship Masonic Club, and will be held from 1 to 7 p.m. in the lower level conference room.

Who can donate blood? Any healthy person who weighs 110 pounds or more and is 18 years old or older is eligible to become a donor. Seventeen-year-olds can donate if they have a signed parent consent form.

Can an individual get AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) from donating blood?

"No, you cannot get AIDS from donating blood," said American Red Cross representative Charlene Guarnino who is helping coordinate the Jan. 15 drive.

She explained that scientists believe the virus is spread most often by intimate personal contact and rarely by blood transfusions. Donating blood, she said, does not expose the donor to AIDS.

Voluntary blood donations help the American Red Cross meet the goal of providing an adequate blood supply to meet anyone's transfusion needs. A single blood donation, in fact, can help more than one person. A unit of blood is separated into components - red blood cells, platelets, and plasma which are used in different ways to treat a range of illnesses or injuries.

Start the new year off right; give the Gift of Life. Appointments for the Jan. 15 Blood Drive can be made by calling the Community Health Education Department, 657-3910, ext. 567.

Shawsheen Tech is looking forward to another successful semester as the area's largest and most diversified evening school program. Registration for courses will be held in the school cafeteria at 100 Cook st., Billerica from 7 to 9 p.m. January 13 through 16.

Payment will be accepted via MasterCard, Visa, cash or personal check. Average cost per 60 hour course will be $75. Thirty and 60 hour courses will be offered in the following areas:

Automotive mechanics, welding, home computer, word processing, technical illustration, typesetting, data processing, woodworking, diesel, carpentry theory, small engines, machine shop, typing, accounting, photography, graphic camera, cooking/baking, electrical, home owner maintenance, jazzaerobics, autobody repair, electronics, shorthand, drafting, printing, health assistance, air conditioning/refrigeration, plumbing, G.E.D. prep, electrical code.

A new machine shop course has been added using the Bridgeport Series II C.N.C. Programming equipment. Those interested in any of the above may direct questions to 667-2111.

Sludge disposal plant proposed for North Woburn

Maybe the furor in Woburn is a thing of the past - and maybe it isn't.

Woburn, in the last week of 1985, found itself to be one of two dozen communities in eastern Massachusetts which had been named as a potential location for a sludge treatment facility. The furor was immediate. A consultant to the MWRA had named the sites.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has the unenviable task of finding sufficient water for eastern Massachusetts communities, and at the same time, solving the problem of what to do about the sewerage problem that plagues Boston Harbor.

The MWRA is seeking one or two sites in eastern Massachusetts for the location of facilities to either incinerate the sludge from the sewers, or else compost it into fertilizer. About 70 tons of sludge accumulates daily, much of which is dumped into Boston Harbor.

The site named in Woburn is adjacent to the Wilmington/Woburn town line, off New Boston Street, which is an extension of Woburn Street. It occupies 153 acres and is adjacent to the Industri-Plex 128, a place which has been named by the U.S. Environmental Agency as the fifth worst hazardous dump in the country.

The list of potential sites had been recommended by SEA Consultants Inc. of Cambridge. There were 12 island properties, and 12 coastal locations named. The company was paid $480,000 for its work. The report is being listed as a "preliminary" first step, and the Woburn Times reports, the list will not be "finalized" until mid-February.

Mayor John Rabbitt of Woburn termed the study "disgraceful." He had not been consulted, he said, nor had any of the city officials.

Rabbitt for several years has been negotiating with state officials to construct a railroad station in the area, with parking facilities. The station would become a part of the "T" system of transportation.

The Times, on the last day of the year (Dec. 31) printed a story which said that the "sludge experts" did not know about the potential T station.

Frederick Aufiero of SEA

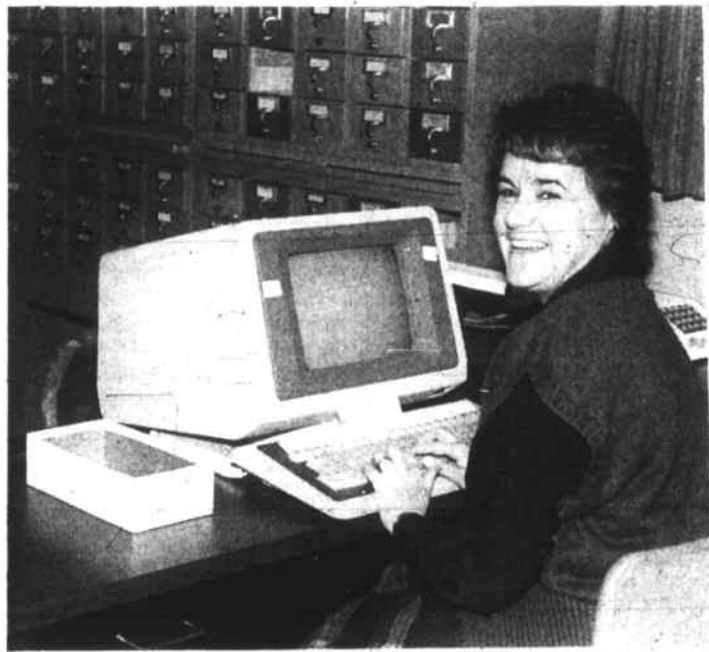

Consultants Inc. told the Times that virtually every site named by his firm had alternative development plans. He said that concerns about the Industri-Plex had no part in the decision to include the site on the list, and further that the property was not deliberately chosen because it was next to a hazardous waste site.

His firm is under orders to develop a site to dispose of the 70 tons of sludge that are produced daily by primary sewage treatment plants. There is a court order for the MWRA to stop contaminating the harbor. The MWRA is seeking federal authorization to dump sludge in a deep ocean site off the coast of New Jersey until the sewage treatment facility can be constructed and go on line.

Aufiero said that the SEA will not make its final recommendation until December 1986, and that the MWRA will not designate a site until July 1987. Neither an incinerator nor a composting plant should present a danger, nor emit offensive odors, he said. Both types of plants are enclosed facilities equipped with odor-control mechanisms.

There will be opportunities for public comment before SEA makes its final recommendation, and before the MWRA chooses the final site, according to Aufiero.

Doris Carbone of South Street, Wilmington, at the keyboard of a Wilmington terminal for the Merrimack Valley Automation Project. The project exchanges information on the availability of any volume in any of the 14 participating libraries.

Automation project lists books in 14 libraries

The Wilmington Memorial Library automation project is now underway. In April the town meeting voted $80,000, to enable the Wilmington Library to become a part of the Merrimack Valley Consortium.

The consortium, with terminal headquarters in Andover, lists all the books available in each of the participating libraries. It further keeps a record of each book in those libraries, so that, at the push of a button in any other library, there will be immediate knowledge as to whether or not the particular volume desired is available at that moment.

Wilmington's library has nearly 100,000 volumes. Of these 17,000 have been bar coded, and another 6,000 have been entered into the data base. Approximately 74,000 volumes remain, as yet, to be entered into the computer listing.

The Board of Library Trustees expects that all the Wilmington volumes will be completely coded by spring. At the present time Wilmington residents can take advantage of the automation project to locate volumes in other libraries. The Wilmington library is the 14th, in the Merrimack Valley Consortium to be a part of the consortium data base.

Point of View

A gutsy lady steps down

After two years of pushing and prodding in an ongoing effort to keep the high school renovation work on schedule, and being called some not-so-nice names along the way, PBC Chairman Diane Allan Monday night turned over the reins to her able successor Bernie LaVita.

All members seemed to agree it was time for a change. Diane, herself, went along with the consensus, making the vote for LaVita unanimous.

For Diane, it is possibly a time of mixed emotions. There has certainly got to be some relief at being divested of all the responsibility placed on her shoulders the past few years. There has got to be some sadness, too, in relinquishing control and letting someone else wrestle with the tough decisions in the year ahead. There should certainly be a touch of pride in a job well done.

The town owes a debt of gratitude to Diane (indeed, to the whole committee) for her untiring efforts in carrying out the oftentimes thankless tasks she's been faced with day in and day out.

Through it all - the endless meetings with architects, contractors, committee members, and town officials; the preparation of jobs going out to bid; the on-site visits and overseeing the project herself; the long hours with no pay and little recognition - Diane has shown tenacity, ability, enthusiasm, and guts. There may have been some mistakes, some things to be learned along the way, but Diane proved she was equal to the job.

"I wish we could all stand up and applaud you," was LaVita's comment to Diane before accepting his gavel at the end of a long meeting.

We second the sentiment.

To Diane, we have no doubt that you will indeed be, as you said, "still quite visible around town." To Bernie LaVita, we wish you luck and fortitude in carrying the renovations through to a successful completion October 24, 1986.

25 Years Ago

The January 12, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

A special town meeting was planned for February 13 to rezone land for two industries who wanted to locate here. One wanted to break ground by March 1. One site was on the west side of the Boston and Maine Railroad tracks across from Wilmington Square. The other wished to locate in North Wilmington.

Joe LeCreta, an outstanding Wilmington athlete would open a submarine sandwich shop in Wilmington Square the following Sunday.

Almon Allard of 244 Glen Road was promoted to export manager of the Cabot Corp. of Boston.

Attorney Jim Banda of Marie Drive was appointed planning board secretary when Prof. Herb Nickerson who was previously elected told the board he could not serve.

Selectman Nick DeFelice announced that he would be a candidate for re-election in March.

Kristal Pharmacy at the corner of Lowell and Woburn Streets was advertising combs and shoe laces two for 11 cents; and bobby pins two for 20 cents.

Due to the Wilmington Skating Club were $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children. The group raised funds for the rest of its expenses by holding bean suppers. The Town Crier urged 1000 men and women to join the group and pay the dues even if the only ice they had ever seen was in the refrigerator.

A five room house near Wilmington Square was offered by County Real Estate for $8600.

Paul Cassidy of Burnap Street was pictured displaying a 21 1/2 inch pickerel he caught in Silver Lake.

Rebuilding of a section of Middlesex Avenue to eliminate a bad curve and construction of a culvert for Lubbers Brook was slated to start in about two weeks.

Beauty Lounge of North Wilmington was advertising $12.50 permanents for $8.50.

Donald Farnum son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farnum of Wildwood Street was named to attend the officers candidate school at Fort Benning, Georgia.

'Gas Works' show comes to Tewksbury

"Gas Works: Pipeline To the Future," a fast-paced presentation describing current energy issues, will appear at 9:00 a.m., Thursday, January 9, 1986 in the Tewksbury Junior High School auditorium according to Richard E. Griffin, principal.

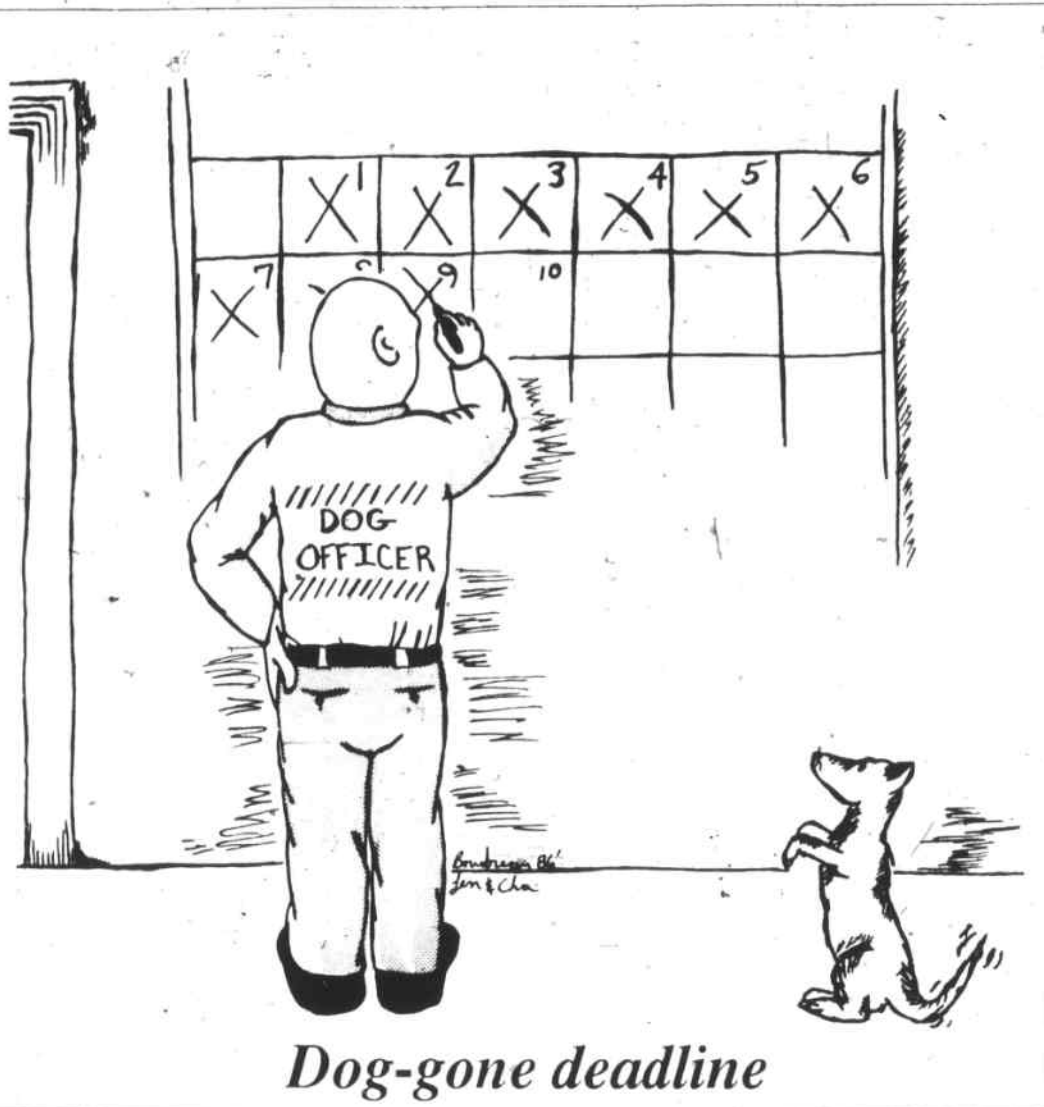

Produced by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU), "Gas Works" answers questions about where energy comes from, how it is used, and why it is becoming scarce and expensive. This ORAU presentation is sponsored by the Colonial Gas Company.

Focusing on an array of colorful graphic and electronic teaching devices, "Gas Works" features a propane-powered motor bike, gasification domes demonstrating synthetic fuel production, a cryogenics demonstration explaining the liquefaction of natural gas, and a giant dinosaur illustrates the origin of fossil fuels. Audience members participate in most of the demonstrations.

Phillip Jackson, the teacher demonstrator, uses these electronic teaching aids to put complex energy issues in a fresh and entertaining perspective. Mr. Jackson, a graduate of Knoxville College, has received extensive additional training from ORAU about the complexities of energy.

ORAU is a non-profit education research consortium of 51 colleges and universities.

Wilmington League of Women Voters celebrates 25th anniversary

by Arlene Surprenant

As the Wilmington League of Women Voters marks its 25th year, four active members got together to explore their feelings on belonging to this "grassroots organization" and to share some of the positive steps the league has taken since its inception as a provisional league in 1961.

President Donna Blackwell, Pat Rodan, Odette Kent, and Betsy Mullen gathered in the warm post-holiday surroundings of Odette's living room and talk at length about the league's background, present and future.

"The league is a good place to learn about government and be exposed to new issues," says Donna with a smile as the others readily concur. Not only does the organization provide the public with information on voter and registration procedures, but it promotes political responsibility, allows members to act on selected governmental issues, and highlights candidates' stands on various issues.

Barbara Sullivan helped found the Wilmington League of Women Voters and became its first president. With a total of 41 members, the early group became a full-fledged league in 1963. Members automatically became a part of state and federal leagues well.

According to Pat, who claims 15 years as a league member, the organization was started when several women expressed an interest in finding out more about their town. The league offered the perfect format for digging into town issues. It also provided an opportunity for social interaction, something that's limited today as more and more members juggle meetings with part time jobs and other interests.

The early league compiled and distributed "Know Your Town" booklets and "Town Meeting Procedures" pamphlets. In 1963, members elected to study the zoning needs of Wilmington. In succeeding years, explains Pat, they also did studies on the town bylaws, betterments, and local schools, and were instrumental in founding a library facility and the Wilmington Community Schools and hiring a paid recreation director.

The league today continues in its public service capacity. A while back it held an appreciation night for town board members and their families because, as Pat puts it, "we realize the work board members do for nothing."

The organization sponsors a Voter Information Night, Candidates Night, Meet Your Town Officials Night (upcoming this January 23), and expresses views on certain town meeting warrant articles.

It also continued to provide information to keep the public up to date on issues. To this end, the league currently posts its "Wilmington Voter" newsletter on the library bulletin board and has started publishing a "Did You Know?" column in the Town Crier each month. For fun, and to raise extra funds (above the $25 annual dues), members held a Craft Fair last June and a pie sale during the Fourth of July celebration.

One of the more interesting aspects of being a league member is the opportunity to participate in a "study" and act on the results of that study. A study - usually undertaken on a "burning issue" such as hazardous waste or low income housing, for example - may take one or two years to complete.

Several members join a study committee and thoroughly research the subject through polls, interviews, state guidelines, books, magazines, and other resource materials. They then take the facts back to the general membership and arrive at a "consensus." Members must arrive at a consensus before they can take a stand and speak for the rest of the group on an issue. Many times, since the local league is more or less under the state and national leagues, the consensus is sent on to those levels.

Being able to participate in studies, says Donna, is the main reason she joined the league. "I'm addicted to knowing what's going on," she explains, adding that once she has all the facts, she is then compelled to take positive action.

The other women are quick to explain why they joined the Wilmington league.

"I got involved for me" says Odette, a former social worker turned homemaker and mother, interested in staying abreast of civic affairs and receiving the frequent publications put out for members.

"The league definitely takes up most of my time, but that's my choice," she explains, adding that she is also a member of the recently formed Air Pollution Task Force. She said that men and women (yes, membership is extended to both sexes) interested in their town shouldn't feel shy about joining the league.

"There are no prerequisites to belonging," she adds, and members can get as involved as they wish.

Betsy joined the league five years

Financial aid workshop

On Tuesday evening, January 14, the Guidance Department of Wilmington High School will sponsor a financial aid workshop in the high school cafeteria at 7:00 p.m. The key speaker will be Walter Costello from the University of Lowell who will discuss the types and sources of financial aid available, estimating eligibility for financial aid, and application procedures. Edward Woods, assistant principal, will discuss local scholarships and application procedures. During the evening the new financial aid form (FAF) will be distributed.

This is a key document in determining eligibility and requires the presence of parents to accurately complete all information forms.

On Tuesday evening, January 21, a follow-up program will be presented in the high school cafeteria at 7:00. At that time Anthony DeLuca, former school department business manager, will be available to answer specific questions regarding the FAF.

All parents and students are cordially invited to attend these essential and informative meetings.

Tewksbury man charged with kidnapping, attempted rape

A Tewksbury man has been charged with the early morning kidnapping and attempted rape of a Methuen woman on New Year's Day. Charged with assault and battery, indecent assault, attempted rape and kidnapping was Garron L. Deramus, 24, of 23 Revere Rd., Tewksbury.

Deramus was arrested by Officer Anthony DiCalogero at his home January 2 at 7:10 a.m. when police went to his address after running a check on the car he left behind in Haffner's gas station early New Year's morning.

According to reports, Deramus met the Methuen woman at a party in Lowell and asked her to go with him to another party in Tewksbury. Police allege Deramus then took the woman to his home where he ripped her dress in an alleged attempted rape.

The woman apparently broke free and ran from the house seeking help, police say. Deramus, police allege, went outside, talked with the woman and put her in a car. He drove down Main Street and stopped at Haffner's gas station, reportedly for gasoline, police say.

Once in the self serve station, the woman again broke free and sought help from the attendants who called police. Police responding to the scene were told the man who drove into the station in a 1974 Olds Delta fled the scene on foot.

Another cruiser responding to the scene saw a man fitting the description running on Shawsheen Street near Kenneth Street and gave foot chase until he fled into a wooded section.

Police ran a check on the car left behind at Haffner's and searched the area piecing together clues in the investigation.

The victim, police say, was not raped and refused medical treatment.

Weather was just right for a cookout - cold

Wilmington is a fine town in which to live. That was the sentiment expressed by many at the annual Cantwell-picnic on Allston Street last Saturday evening.

There were more than 20 guests, all neighbors. The picnic is always held on January 4, no matter what the temperature is. Last year it was below 20 degrees, but this year was a mild 26. There is an open fire, of sorts, in an incinerator, to keep the guests warm.

One of the young folks who was present was Bryan Cantwell who, last fall at the time of Hurricane Gloria, came into contact with a live electric wire in Tewksbury near the VFW Hall. Bryan was taken to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington and released after an hour or so, but there will always be a scar.

Bryan Cantwell enjoys a Classic Coke. He has completely recovered from his encounter with an electrical line downed by Hurricane Gloria in September.

Indictments issued for dumping, gravel pit at old airport

A Middlesex County Grand Jury has indicted Leonard Caporale and Alexander Realty Trust III of Billerica for violations of the Wetlands Protection Act and the Massachusetts Landfill statute. Caporale was also indicted for threatening a state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) employee.

The trust owns the old airport property on the Billerica-Wilmington line, where Caporale has run a gravel operation in recent years.

The indictments are the first sought by Middlesex County District Attorney Scott Harshbarger's Environmental Crime Division. The unit was set up earlier this year within the office's Public Protection Bureau. Harshbarger said the unit will prosecute flagrant and repeat environmental polluters. "These are crimes. They've been defined by the Legislature as crimes," he said. "The statute is there, the penalty is there and we intend to enforce the law in these cases. In this day and age, we can no longer view environmental pollution as a minor problem."

Caporale was indicted for seven counts of violating the Wetlands Protection Act, 16 counts of illegal landfill violations and one count of threatening a DEQE official. Alexander Realty Trust III was indicted for two counts of violating the Wetlands Protection Act and one count of violation of the illegal landfill statute. A violation of the Wetlands Protection Act carries a sentence of up to six months in the House of Correction and/or a fine of not more than $1000. A violation of the illegal landfill statute carries a fine of up to $500. The threatening count carries a maximum sentence in the House of Correction for six months or a fine of up to $100.

The indictments cover alleged activities from 1981 through 1985 and are related to the operation of the dumpsite and gravel operation at the old Billerica Airport on the Billerica/Wilmington line. The refuse allegedly illegally buried or piled on the site includes: building demolition, cast iron pipe, wood, concrete blocks, newspaper, tree stumps and tires.

"There is a need to have a local prosecutorial response to these types of crimes," said District Attorney Harshbarger. "It is the type of crime that far too often goes unpunished. We are going to make sure that the environmental laws are strictly enforced and that they apply equally to everyone."

Foreign culture invasion at Tewksbury High School continues

by Lauren Terrazzano

Foreign culture continues to invade Tewksbury Memorial High School as the school prepares to host 12 exchange students and a teacher from France. The European visitors are scheduled to arrive in mid-March and will stay for three weeks with host families in the area.

The students are between the ages of 15 and 18 and reside in Lyon, which is located in Southern France.

Upon arrival in Tewksbury, the French students will partake in many varied activities. They will attend Tewksbury High School classes to develop a better understanding of American education. Also, many field trips for students are under consideration. Possible field trips to Boston to tour the John F. Kennedy Library, the John Hancock Tower, and the U.S.S. Constitution are being discussed.

Tewksbury High School students are sure to benefit from the French students visit. TMHS students will learn more about France and its customs, while developing strong friendships with the Trans-Atlantic visitors.

The trip is being arranged by the School Exchange Service (SES), an organization which promotes foreign exchange between the United States and Austria, Great Britain, France, Israel, Italy, Canada, Costa Rica, Germany, Spain, and Venezuela. It is co-sponsored by the Council on International Education Exchange and the National Association of Secondary School Principals. The Service's main goal is to promote cultural awareness between students and faculty of various countries.

Tewksbury High School has been involved with international exchange since the International Club was formed at the beginning of the school year. The club exposes its members to international culture and gives them the opportunity to travel abroad with such exchange organizations as Nacel, and the American Field Service. The club is presently preparing for the French students' visit in March.

Community Schools offers two workshops

Managing Conflict and Working and Mothering: The Balancing Act are two workshops being co-sponsored by the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc. and the Wilmington Community Schools, Inc., beginning in January.

Managing Conflict Workshop - Conflict between people is a natural outgrowth of being with others. We all experience conflicts at home, at work, with friends or with relatives. How can conflicts be used to promote growth and change rather than to be non-productive or even destructive in our relationships and our goals? This workshop will focus on some common causes of presented to use conflict in more creative ways. The Managing Conflict Workshop leader is Robert Hartl, Ph.D., licensed psychologist, who has conducted similar workshops for industry and government agencies. The workshop will be held Wednesdays, 7:30 to 9 p.m.; $60 for eight weeks. Begins January 29.

Working and Mothering: The Balancing Act

What effect does day care have on your child? Can you be both a good mother and a good employee at the same time? If you are thinking of going to work, but have concerns about how you will manage all the responsibilities or about the effect of day care on your child, this workshop will help you assess the issues and plan the transition for you and your family.

If you are working already but are experiencing conflicts between working and mothering or are seeing signs that your child or children are not adjusting well, these issues can be clarified and alternative coping strategies suggested in the group. This support-discussion group will be led by Gail Stone, M.S.W., licensed social worker and working mother of an 18-month-old. The Working and Mothering: The Balancing Act Workshop will be held Tuesdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning January 28; $20 for three weeks.

Registration for the courses begins Monday, January 13, at the Community Schools Registration Night at Wilmington High School cafeteria from 7 to 8:30. Those who cannot appear to register in person can register by calling, 658-8592 or 658-3205 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Courses will be held at the Wilmington Family Counseling Service's new office, Suite 103, Presidential Park, 314 Main St., Wilmington across from Dunkin' Donuts. Advanced registration is required.

Scholarship fund

A scholarship fund has been established at Wilmington High School in memory of Daniel Rollins, a WHS student who died recently. On Dec. 23, the WHS Student Council held a concert featuring "Away". Student Council President Ann Marie Meeker (right) this week presented a check for $900 to Daniel's parents, Andrea and David Rollins. They plan to grant a scholarship to a sports oriented student.

Grant to pay for window replacements

A request for a window wall energy grant to pay for the cost of replacing all the windows at the high school, plus some solar energy innovations, is "well on its way to being accepted," according to outgoing PBC Chairman Diane Allan.

Allan told her committee Monday night at the Executive Office of Energy Resources approved the request, which is contingent on a technical audit being done at the high school.

State Rep. James Miceli confirmed Allan's statement and assured committee members he has a "firm commitment" for the money. The total funding sought was $364,000.

Allan hopes to replace all the windows in June once students vacate the building.

for letting his town know about the public hearing. He then said he thought the new housing was supposed to blend into the town of Wilmington.

"You haven't really fulfilled this obligation," Doucette told board members, adding that, "it seems to me it's more blended in to North Reading."

Some discussion centered around tenant preference. While Wilmington residents had been promised preference, there is presently a proposed change in the tenant regulations to increase minority access and make the language stronger, said EOCD Family Housing Coordinator Suzanne Barclay.

A decision on the project can be expected two weeks from the date of the hearing, Barclay told those present. Also, a comprehensive hearing on the housing will be held by the Wilmington Board of Appeals sometime in January, she added.

Wilmington Senior Topics

Back in full swing

The on-going programs at the Wilmington Senior Citizens Drop-in Center are now back in full swing following the holidays.

Action Alert

The WCOA has received an Action Alert memo from the secretary of Elder Affairs, Richard Rowland. In it he stressed the importance of exercise for senior citizens. He says, "It is important for senior citizens to get a sufficient amount of exercise. It is the only way to stay healthy."

The exercise program is instructed by a physical therapist specializing in exercise oriented to the older person. Seniors should be aware that being physically active is essential to well-being. Seniors can become prone to such ailments as heart disease, osteoporosis (a bone-thinning condition) and intermittent claudication. Intermittent claudication causes cramp-like pains and weakness in the legs, forcing a person to stop and rest. The main cause of this condition is the lack of oxygen from cigarette smoking, being over-weight, consuming fatty food, and the general lack of exercise.

If a short walk causes severe leg cramps, it would be wise to consult a physician. Exercise not only prevents physical ailments, it also improves life. It strengthens muscles, allowing people to be more active. It also improves the ability to cope with stress and makes one feel and look better, allowing them to enjoy life to the fullest.

The exercise program is held two days a week at the Drop-in Center from 10 to 11 a.m. Those who can afford it are asked for a $1.00 deposit to help defray the cost of the instructor.

Other programs

The Council sponsors several other exercise programs for the seniors which are good to help them get a sufficient amount of exercise. The swimming program is held at Shawsheen Tech Wednesday mornings from 10 to 11. Bowling at the Candlepin Lanes in North Reading is enjoyed Wednesday afternoons beginning at 1:00. Dancing is at the Senior Drop-in Center every Friday afternoon starting at 1:00. Walking is on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings starting at 9:00 weather permitting.

Arts and crafts

The arts and crafts sessions have resumed. Not only is this a constructive program, it is also a good way to meet seniors interested in the same activity. Arts and crafts can also be attributed to physical and mental well-being. Keeping active while intermingling with other seniors is very important to all.

New checks

For the past two months those receiving a Social Security check have noticed the familiar green punched card check has been replaced by a new more counterfeit-resistant cost-effective paper check. This new check has been on the planning board since 1970. It would be almost impossible to alter or counterfeit. More than a dozen security features are contained in the design, the ink and the paper. It features a full-length reproduction of the Statue of Liberty on the left and a muted closeup of the statue's head and torch on the right, over a multicolored background, ranging from light blue to pale peach. The letters USA create a background pattern on the front and back of the check. Taxpayers will save $6,000,000 per year in the cost of paper stock and storage space. Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries will not receive the new type checks until April 1.

Social closed out

The January therapeutic social has been filled. Those who have signed up and feel they cannot make the trip are urged to call the Drop-in Center. Other seniors may want to attend.

George and Dorothy McMahon of Audubon Road in North Reading were concerned about emergency and other access, as well as the isolated location.

The Fortinis move to the country

When they hit Stoneham, they'd gone far enough

By JIM ROUILLARD

They'd gone for a long ride in the country.

It was well before Interstate Route 93 was a blueprint or even a dream.

It was during the early 1920s, in fact - and many towns' Main Street (Route 28) was the major conduit north of Boston.

John Fortini had been advised to move out of Somerville, to "the country" for the sake of his wife's health.

When they reached what seemed the deep wilds, Fortini felt he had been driving so long he must be in New Hampshire. He saw a store for sale, and decided to buy it, figuring it wouldn't be so bad to settle in Massachusetts' sister state.

Thus it was that one of Stoneham's well-known and best-loved families arrived in town.

The Fortinis quickly set up a corner provision business at Elm and Washington streets. Their delivery truck, 1920s vintage Ford with wooden slats around the truck bed, held a mattress, according to John Fortini's daughter, Ida Cerbone, for her and her brother Eddie to ride on.

But the truck did not always make it up hills in first gear, she explained, so her father would turn it around and drive up in reverse, in order to make his deliveries.

Yet, that's only the prelude, for it's not the truck, nor the store, nor even the father, but the son, Edwin D. Fortini, around whom this story revolves.

A decade ago, Fortini had a dream which might now be said to be halfway accomplished, since it may be in partial danger.

He sold the town fathers his idea, organized volunteer workers, took the abandoned town almshouse, built in 1852, and devoted 10 years of unpaid time, energy, and even his own money, to fashion a Council on Aging program which would give Stoneham elders a gem of a building in a serene and beautiful spot of their own.

"He's Mr. Stoneham Senior Citizen as far as I'm concerned," said several politi-

EDDIE FORTINI, lifelong elder advocate, whose family came to Stoneham because his father, John, had driven far enough from Somerville, in the 1920's, to be convinced he had reached New Hampshire. Fortini is flanked by his sister, Ida Cerbone of Revere, and his mother, Alma Fortini, also of Stoneham.

cians at a variety of testimonials held for Fortini during the past year, and since his retirement from the Stoneham Council on Aging.

But a man's contribution, however tidily measured by political plaudits, are more surely gauged by the affection which he inspires in the people he has helped.

Past chairman of the town's Council on Aging and longest holder of that post, Fortini is a man of immeasurable compassion, whose caring is sometimes masked by a brusque facade.

Yet he has often been the behind-the-scenes assistant to countless people in distress or need. Ask him for help and you're very likely to get it.

And since his deep tan, jet-black hair, and general energy defy the title of senior citizen, Fortini's characteristics are more in keeping with the broader honor grateful Stoneham elders and others would give him, which may be far closer to the mark.

"He's Mr. Stoneham as far as we're concerned," according to scores of senior citizens, Council on Aging staff and townspeople, in less public but more casual chat: a chorus that swells deeper and clearer than politicians' praise.

An active and frequently impassioned advocate for seniors just about all his life, Edwin Dante Fortini is a Stoneham-bred success story who has turned his time, talents and much out-of-pocket money back into his family's chosen soil. He's got a dynamic personality, with frequent examples of ingenuity, colorful speech and surprise for politicians up his sleeve.

When senior programs have been threatened in the past, he has mobilized elders to deluge selectmen with telephone calls, or taken the podium at Town Meeting to persuade the voters to override Finance Committee recommendations against adding Council staff.

It was during his undergraduate years at Maine's Bates College, in fact, where he played varsity football, that Fortini surprised his own family by arriving home in Stoneham one night on a motorcycle.

"When he pulled into the yard," Ida Cerbone recalls, "my mother was having a hemorrhage because he was on the cycle."

Their mother, Alma Fortini, by the way, is a tiny, gentle creature who dislikes garlic, loves Italian operas, and runs the "Nook," a crafts and thrift shop at the Senior Citizen Center. The money she and other volunteers have helped raise has gone to a wide variety of elder programs.

But she was not gentle in her distress when her son arrived on his motorcycle, according to

New Year's resolutions

FM TALK: Well, it's that time of year again, time to make all those New Year's resolutions, which, it seems, get harder and harder to keep each year. This columnist had the opportunity to speak with some local residents while shopping at the Woburn Mall recently, and they appeared pretty determined to keep their promises to themselves. Here are a few of the 1986 resolutions they had to mention:

A middle-aged fellow from Woburn told us: "I'm not going to spend so much time dwelling on the past. You know what it's like - you make a couple of mistakes and you let them haunt you forever. My mistakes were I spent too much time trying to make a living and not enough time thinking about my family. As a result, I nearly lost my family. Well, this year I'm going to make a special effort to give more to them and to think less about just getting ahead. Who cares if you drive a brand new Cadillac? What good is the car without the family to enjoy it with you?"

Barbara K., of Wilmington, a nurse in Lowell, told us: "I'm going to resolve never to drink and drive again. I just recently graduated from nursing school. When I was in school I never gave much thought to what happens to people's lives when they get into trouble from drinking and driving. Then I went to work as a nurse, and saw it first-hand. The broken bodies and broken lives. There's no way I want to end up that way."

A young married fellow from Stoneham said: "I want to spend more time with my kids. I've been spending too much time playing golf and spending Saturday afternoons out with the guys. I'd like to start spending some time with the kids, taking them to ball games, and zoo, the science museum, places like that. I'm realizing that if I spend more time with them, and think less of my own good times, my kids might have a chance to grow up with the right values."

"I've decided I'm going to be nicer to people," a twenty-three-year-old waitress from Burlington told us. "I tend to forget other people's feelings when I get wrapped up in myself. I'm going to try to remember their feelings too, and try to be nicer to them."

Arthur G., from Woburn, said his Resolution was to go back to school. "I'm going to make a promise to myself that I'm going to better my chances at getting a good job. Since I don't have a lot of formal education, I'd like to go back to school to learn a profession, perhaps a trade. It's the person who knows how to perform a viable service these days who's making all the money."

A thirty-six-year-old woman from Burlington said: "I am making a New Year's resolution this year to spend more time with my mother. I never used to think about my mother as a friend. It took me until I was in my mid-thirties and divorced to realize just how much of a friend she could be. This year I'm going to spend more time with her, taking her to lunch and doing things with her. I think she'd like that, and I know it would make me feel good."

Bob J., from Woburn: "I'm

Street, herself also active for 11 years in the town's elder affairs. He saw the derelict Town Infirmary on Elm Street as a place which could be converted into a Senior Citizen Center, Mrs. Strail said, and started the process which they both hope will keep standing one of Stoneham's few remaining authentic historical landmarks.

The Infirmary, known to locals, as "The Home," or the old poorhouse, had been untenanted for several years, and had become a hangout for some local youth, for the consumption of alcohol and drugs, Fortini said. They had smashed windows and doors, used the bathtubs for toilets, ignited at least one fire there, and helped create an incredible clean-up job for Fortini and his small group of volunteers.

In the decade since the 136 Elm Street Center opened (the Council on Aging had formerly been housed in the offices which are now part of the Town Hall Annex, attached to the fire station) the staff has grown, EDDIE FORTINI received a citation from the Stoneham Council on Aging thanking him for work which has "benefited our senior population immeasurably." With Fortini is Estelle Bertolino, secretary of the Council.

solely under Fortini's administration, from a part-time telephone referral service (which Mrs. Strail staffed alone in the tiny front hall of the building, with an electric space heater for warmth) to a multi-service center manned by a full time social outreach worker, a director, custodian/driver, and a part-time secretary.

Innovative services which Fortini initiated at the Council are simply too vast to enumerate, Strail said, but they include every major function in which the Center continues today: regular medical clinics, a meal-site and drop-in program at the center, year-round delivery of meals-on-wheels to Stoneham's infirmed and housebound elderly, outreach to homebound and lonely elders, and educational, recreational and social programs and trips.

Yet there is another aspect, and a worry, involving the efforts of Fortini and his helpers, to preserve the current Senior Citizen building, in its present state, as a place of refuge and beauty for the town's elders.

The Council on Aging building, thanks to efforts by the Stoneham Historical Commission, is now listed in the National Register of Historic Places, as part of Stoneham's Multiple Resource Area. It's architectural and historical significance are both described by documents on file at the Massachusetts Historical Commission, which comes under the umbrella of the Commonwealth's Office of the Secretary of State.

"The Stoneham Almshouse is one of the few intact 19th century poorhouses surviving in the metropolitan Boston area. (It) possesses integrity of location, setting, materials and association. It is significant as a rare surviving example of an important 19th century building type, the poorhouse, and for its associations with the care of the aged and indigent of Stoneham."

According to most recent estimates.)

Among the citations presented to Fortini by selectmen and the Council at testimonials, were words of strong praise for his work which "benefited our senior population immeasurably," and for his "perpetuating the well-being of our senior population."

But one thing above all that Fortini himself said he would like to see perpetuated is the building he hoped to preserve from the vandals' rage and the developer's bulldozer.

As for acknowledging some of the praise he has received from politicians and townspeople, Fortini disclaimed:

"It just happened that I was in the right place at the right time, and there was a lot of help."

Yet the man is modest in his own praise. It took Ann Hobbs, former long-time Council member and Stoneham representative to the Mystic Valley Elder Services board of directors, to articulate more specific thanks and praise.

"No-one will ever know how much money has come out of Eddie's own pocket towards the elder programs in Stoneham."

"Maybe it's too much to expect," said George Crowell, also a former Council member and ten year volunteer driver at the Stoneham Council, that another person of Eddie Fortini's caliber, vision, compassion and drive will show up in this generation, to fight for elder rights in Stoneham.

"But we can always hope."

Roving

going to spend more time relaxing, maybe take a vacation. I haven't treated myself to a vacation in years. All I seem to be doing these days is working. Well, this year it's going to be different. I'm going to force myself to slow down a little to enjoy life more. That I can promise you."

Bob's friend, a thirty-year-old truck driver also from the same city, agreed. "I'm going to try to slow down a little too. Maybe take some time to travel down to Hilton Head to play some golf. I've been dying to treat myself to that kind of vacation, and this might be the year I finally do it."

"My New Year's resolution is to spend more time with my wife," another fellow from Woburn told us. "I've been married thirty-five years, and to be honest with you, I've been so busy with my business in recent years, I haven't done much to please her. She's been talking about going on one of those cruise ships for a vacation. Maybe I'll surprise her, take her on one for a nice, long two-week cruise. She deserves it, especially for putting up with me for all these years."

Karen B., from Wilmington: "I'm making a resolution to go back to church. I hate to say it, but I've been neglecting my church for too long. I'd like to get back into the habit of going to mass again, something I used to do all the time. It's a lousy excuse to say I've become too busy to pay attention to my religion, but guess that's exactly what I let happen. I'd like to change that habit in 1986, if I can."

A jolly chap from Stoneham stopped by to tell us: "I've got to make a promise to myself that I'll eat less and exercise more. I'm in my forties now, and I'm beginning to see the results of all that eating and drinking in my thirties. I should talk! I bet I put on ten pounds just over the holidays this year. Well, I'm going to get back on the track again, and do less eating and more working out. Who knows, if I get thin enough I'll be able to go back to eating up a storm again."

A middle-aged housewife from Woburn said, "I'm going to make an attempt at understanding my kids more this year. I've got two teenagers, one boy and one girl, and goodness knows I've tried to bring them up right. But there doesn't seem to be any guarantees anymore. You can do what you think is right and still end up with your hands full. The only thing I can do is try to understand them better, try to look at the world the way they see it. Maybe then I'll have a good chance at keeping them on the right track."

As for this columnist, I'd like to make my own New Year's resolution for the coming year. First, however, I must say thanks to all the readers, friends, who took the time to contact me over the holidays. One particular letter, from an anonymous reader, had a very strong impact on me, and I'd like to share it with you readers, since it seems to say a lot about the current state of the holiday season.

The letter went, "I read your Christmas article in the Dec. 18 paper. How true it is! How painfully accurate! You are not alone in your thoughts and wishes."

"As for fewer house lights and decorations we are one of them. One reason being this year we spent cash (no charges) on gifts and had next to nothing left over. Paychecks go just so far. Secondly, many unexpected family problems have cropped up dampening the overall spirit. Selfishness and petty quarreling can do a job on a family. But some people don't care."

"My childhood was a lot like yours. And my children have said to me upon seeing tears down my face at this season, 'Ma, why are you sad?' I tell them I miss the old Christmas of years ago. But they don't know about those. These ways — the commercialism, expensive gifts, family problems — are the only Christmas my children know. I tell them what it was like but they don't see... they never saw an 'old Christmas.' Yes, I weep. I am only in my early forties, and I weep. I weep for past Christmases, for the cold Christmas my children see now, and for the hungry and homeless. I try to cope and smile with the 'now' that is here, but the memories are strong. What I wouldn't give to have them back."

This woman's letter concluded with a wish for hope for the future Christmas season. Which brings me to my own New Year's resolution. I'd like to see this woman, and all the folks out there who may be feeling the same way this year, find peace of mind and happiness, and if there is anything this columnist can do to help reach this goal, I will find a way to do it. Whether it be through this column or via a letter. With this in mind, I wish you all a very happy and prosperous New Year.

Veterans' questions and answers

Q. — I am receiving VA compensation and claim my sixteen-year-old daughter as a dependent. My daughter is going to have a child next month. Will I be able to claim the child as a dependent on my award?

A. — No. Your daughter's child cannot be considered your dependent for VA purposes.

Q. — I am the widow of a veteran who died five years ago. Can I still apply for a widow's pension?

A. — Yes. There is no time limit.

Q. — Under the Privacy Act of 1974 may the current monthly rate of any VA benefits received by a veteran be released to a third party without the veteran's consent?

A. — Yes.

Q. — Can a veteran draw VA compensation even though his individual service-connected disabilities are rated as non-compensable?

A. — When a veteran has two or more noncompensable service-connected disabilities that clearly interfere with normal employability, a ten percent rating may be assigned.

Q. — Can I use my VA home loan guarantee to purchase a home in Canada?

A. — No. The property must be located in the United States, its territories or possessions.

Q. — What portion of a home loan is covered by the VA guarantee?

A. — The VA guarantees 60 percent of the loan up to a maximum of $27,500 or up to the amount of a veteran's available entitlement.

Q. — I am not a veteran but I would like to purchase a repossessed VA home. Is this possible?

A. — Yes. Repossessed VA homes are available for the general public to purchase. A listing of such repossessed homes is available at your local VA Regional Office.

Q. — I am a 65-year-old, World War II veteran. Do I automatically qualify for a nonservice-connected pension?

A. — No. A veteran must meet certain military discharge and length of service requirements. In addition, the veteran's income cannot exceed certain limitations. At the present time the annual income limitation is $5,886 for a veteran without dependents and $7,710 for a veteran with a dependent. The limit increases by $999 for each additional dependent.

Q. — I receive a protected pension from the VA. My wife recently died; does that mean my benefits will be reduced?

A. — Usually the VA is required to reduce payments when a veteran's spouse dies. In some cases, however, the payment will continue unchanged. Report your spouse's death immediately so that the VA can review your claim and decide whether an adjustment is necessary.

Q. — I was denied reimbursement for a privately purchased headstone because I purchased it prior to my husband's death. Is this correct?

A. — Yes. Reimbursement may only be paid for a headstone or marker purchased after a veteran's death. If a headstone or marker was purchased prior to a veteran's death, an allowance may be paid for separate charges for engraving the existing headstone or marker following the death.

Q. I have a National Service Life Insurance policy that I pay on a monthly basis. Sometimes I forget to mail my premiums on time. May I pay my premiums in advance?

A. — Yes, you may pay premiums as far in advance as you want. There is a discount of 3 percent a year on premiums paid in advance. You may want to change your mode of payment to quarterly, semiannually or annually. A change of the mode of payment can be made at any time by a written request to the VA Insurance Center.

If you have even a few hours a week to visit, share ideas, support and care about a parent who needs someone to listen, to understand and to "be there", please consider joining us.

An orientation meeting for

Inc. Magazine bestows award on Newpro

Mr. Nicholas A. Cogliani, President of Newpro Inc. and his associates and co-workers are extremely proud of an honor bestowed upon them by Inc. Magazine. In the December 1985 issue, Newpro was named one of the fastest growing privately held companies in America. Of the 500 listed, Newpro was ranked 252. The business was incorporated in March of 1980 and markets replacement windows and doors throughout New England. It has grown to be the largest company of its kind in the United States.

"A major factor of Newpro's growth," explains Nicholas Cogliani, "was due to the energy crisis we faced in the early 80's. Our triple pane windows guarantee a fuel savings of more than 25 per cent on fuel consumption. It became apparent that this product needed a full time commitment to market it properly."

The original parent company of Newpro, The Window Shop of Medford, Inc. was founded in 1945 with the belief that "if you take care of your customer, your business will flourish." Since its inception, Newpro has adhered to the same philosophy.

Newpro has prospered throughout New England with seven satellite sales offices in Woburn, Massachusetts, West Boylston, Massachusetts, Norwell, Massachusetts, Springfield, Massachusetts, Warwick, Rhode Island, Manchester, New Hampshire, and Portland, Maine. An eighth office in Buffalo, New York is scheduled to open on January 30th, 1986. Immediate expansion plans are underway for additional locations in New York and also in Connecticut.

Chelmsford Day care applications

The Office of Community Education in Chelmsford is accepting applications for its second semester Day Care program. Free after-school bus transportation to the Harrington Day Care site is provided for Chelmsford participants; however, families of all communities are welcome and encouraged to enroll.

Chelmsford Day Care is a comprehensive program in professional child care tailored to meet the unique demands of today's families.

Stiff competition marks YMCA swim meet

While the North Suburban YMCA Girls Swim Meet with Andover met with defeat, individual swimmers scored best times, and close races made the afternoon exciting. In the late December meet, the Class D (9 and 10) girls raced neck and neck, all the way. In a heart break finish on the last race of the meet, the Vikings came in second place, which put them just two points short of a total Class D victory.

The Class D medley relay team of Flatley, Sagota, McDonald, and Griesmer were out ahead all the way, finishing with a great time of 2:38.31. Karen McDonald swam vigorously, taking first places in the 100 yard Individual Medley and the 100 yard Free.

Erin Hebrough achieved a second place finish with a 47.15 in the 50 yard Breast and a third place in the 100 yard Free. Mary Segota placed a strong second in the 50 yard Butterfly.

The Free style relay team of Preble, McKay, Hembrough, and Froebel scored a 2:32.30 to take second place.

The Class E (6 to 8) girls, swimming valiantly in the Medley Relay, with Krista Gillis closing the gap, missed a first place by just eight seconds. In the Individual Medley, Gillis brought in a second place. Lisa Luongo finished second in the 25 yard Free and also took third in the 50 yard Free.

Katie Flatley achieved a second place win in the 25 yard Butterfly with 27.38. In the 25 yard Back Christine B. Griesmer came in a strong third place. Christa Gillis showed strength in the 50 yard Breast and took a second place with a time of 22.72.

The Class C girls (age 11 and 12) swam close races taking two first places. Kara Concannon flew threw the water, ahead all the way to victory and a first place in the 100 yard Individual Medley with a 2:39.9, had a strong first place in the 50 yard Butterfly with a 31.25 score.

The Medley Relay team, of Connerton, Coughlin, Concannon, and Holbrook swam hard. Concannon closed the gap but not enough and their score of 2:21.6 took second place.

Class C girls also captured five third place events. Caryn Conarton in the 200 yard Free and the 50 yard Free, and Jennifer Jansen in the 100 yard Free, Andrea Steininger in the 50 yard Back and Courtney UMLE in the 50 yard Breast.

The Class B girls (13 and 14) swam first place in the 50 yard Free and strong second and third place races in all other events. The 50 yard Free saw the Class B girls achieve a 1-3 finish with Estridge taking a first in 28.07 and Vitiello taking third with a 29.74.

Inada achieved a second and third place in the 500 yard Free and the 200 yard Individual Medley respectively. The B girls captured a 2-3 finish in both the 100 yard Back and 100 yard Breast events. Steininger swam 1:27.32 for a second place in the Back and Vitiello swam 1:21.9 for a second place in the Breast. Flatley and Driscoll placed third in these events respectively.

Great finishes were achieved by Class A girl Lisa Tonazuk who swam a first place in the 200 yard Free, just 2.1 seconds ahead of Andover. She put distance between herself and the rest in the 100 yard free and achieved a first with a 58.30.

The Class A (15-16) Girls

Medley Relay team of Reynolds, Holbrook, Jonata, and Tonazuk came in second place, missing first by seconds. The 50 yard Free saw the Class A girls achieve a 1-3 finish with McGullicuddy taking a first with 26.38 and Holbrook a third place with 27.74.

Good swimming achieved second place wins to Mollie Janota in the 200 yard Individual Medley, to Kathy McGullicuddy in the 100 yard free, to Heather Holbrook in the 100 yard Breast, and to Byron in the 500 yard Free.

Holbrook, Janota, and Reynolds captured third place in the 50 yard Free, 100 yard Fly, and 100 yard Back respectively.

The stiff competition with the Andover Y prepared the Viking girls well to their next competition which will be on Jan. 4 hosted by the Lowell Y.

Choate offers diet advice

"Diets really don't work because the behavior change is only temporary. Diet implies something you go on and off," said Janet M. Murray, M.S., R.D., nutritionist and group leader of Learning to Lose, the weight control program offered at Choate, Symmes and the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

"It's the behavior change that's important or one's eating habits that's responsible for weight loss, it's not necessarily the foods per se," added Ms. Murray. "Weight Control is a long-term commitment, that's why behavior change is so important. Sometimes making a small change can make a difference over the long term. That's why we encourage slow, steady healthy weight loss in Learning to Lose," Ms. Murray added.

Learning to Lose, a medically-sound, behavior modification oriented weight control program for those needing to lose 30 lbs. or less and have no major medical complications, will begin in January at all Choate-Symmes divisions. It will begin with an orientation session which is mandatory for all potential participants and be followed by 12 weeks of learning and group interaction from 7 to 9 p.m. The Regional Health Center in Wilmington group will be conducted from Tuesday, Jan. 14 through April 8.

Included in this learning experience are: determining your ideal weight; understanding the importance of exercise; developing your own weight loss eating pattern.

Registration must be completed one week prior to the orientation date. The group is limited to 12 participants, taken on a first-come, first-served basis. Major credit cards are accepted for this program. To receive the brochure and registration form, please call 657-3910, ext. 567. Groups will also begin in January at the Choate and Symmes Hospital divisions.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

They sure know how to pick those airline stewardesses, not only for their beauty, but more importantly, for their charisma, friendliness and cheerfulness.

A key chain is a gadget that allows us to "lose" several keys at the same time.

Joseph Foley Jr., the handsome son of Joseph and Patricia Foley of Tewksbury, described a baseball game he saw last summer this way: "The Red Sox were leading the Yankees for the first two boxes of popcorn, then the Yankees went ahead for two hot dogs and a root beer. The Red Sox came back and won the game as I was finishing a big bag of potato chips — and here I am home, Ma, just in time for dinner."

Some people say that everyone is looking for something for nothing. Well, folks, it ain't so — I could name enough people to fill this page who donate their time and talents to hospitals, convalescent homes and working with retarded children. With dedicated people like that we have no need to worry about the future of this great country.

The only time I get to open my mouth at home is when I yawn. Think young, folks. Aging is for wine, cheese and antiques.

Church bulletin: "Chicken Dinner Tonight, come in for a Wing and a Prayer."

Advice for executives over 50: "Keep an Open mind and a Closed refrigerator."

At a reception following a business seminar, one woman seemed to attract men like a magnet. There were more physically attractive women in the room than she, so this led one executive to ask another, "What's her secret?" "Watch her eyes," replied the other. "When someone speaks, her eyes never leave theirs. She listens with rapt attention. That's the secret. She knows that even if a person isn't a charming conversationalist, they can be a big hit by a charming listener."

My late dear mother told me that as a little girl in Ireland, she used to amuse herself by holding a stick across a gateway that the sheep had to pass through. After the first few sheep had jumped over the stick, she took it away; but all the other sheep leaped over an imaginary barrier at the gateway. They jumped, simply because the others had jumped. My mother always told me and my brothers and sisters, "Don't do something because others are doing it — do it because you honestly believe that it's right to do it."

A "halo" doesn't have to slip very far to become a "noose."

Fred Carlson has a beautiful, resonant voice. He is, in fact, a reknown orator — but from what I hear he is not the "Speaker of the House." Fred, indeed, wears the pants at his house, but usually with an apron in front of them.

Paula Fairfield of North Reading — if a mirror could talk it would say, "I'm the mirror on the wall and yes, Paula, you are the fairest one of all."

Fred Ezekiel, Warren Church and Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington said to Mike Kravchuk, "You can't hold up the game looking for a lost golf ball in the rough!" "I'm not looking for the ball, I've found that. I'm looking for my club."

Lt. Adam DePasquale sent out this bulletin: "Be on the look-out for a bank robber with one eye named Bernie." Bob Giguere immediately inquired, "Lieutenant! What's the other eye called?" When I finish writing Woodchips I read it to a captured audience — my wife Kathy, young Brian and my dog. The dog is the only one that approves; the other two are just waiting for me to unlock the door and let them out.

I have mixed emotions about Little League baseball because many parents I know interfere

Poem

The Lonely Tree

I look out through my window pane,
this cold winter morn,
and see the snow that fell all night
until the early dawn.
Where the rambling waves of grain
bountifully did grow, now nature's sown its winter crop of glistening white snow.

A lonely tree high on a hill, looks on the scene below.
It has withstood the stormy night,
bending to and fro.
Its lofty arms like sentinels,
outstretched up towards the sky,
inviting birds to rest awhile, instead of flying by.

Oh, stately tree, you're not alone,
no reason to feel blue.
The Guardian of the universe is standing there with you.
Today, as when time began,
His outstretched arms implore, to tell us that He stands with us and will for ever more.

by Anthony Manconi

with what is intended to be a "fun" game, so it becomes a game of intense rivalry between the parents of the teams playing. My sister Maureen, for instance, screeched her head off when the coach told her son, Dennis Tully, to hold up at third base. She ordered him to make the turn and head for home, where he was promptly tagged out. Her temper matched the flaming color of her hair as she argued with the plate umpire, the coach and the fans in the stands. This folks, is not an isolated case. Many times I've almost lost my cool.

A beautiful afternoon was almost ruined when another nephew of mine, Sean O'Donnell, struck out. A fan two rows behind me exploded with a barrage of expletives ending with, "You bum, you couldn't hit a cow in the backside with a shovel." Folks, the game is okay, the coaches and umpires are okay, and the kids are more than okay — but some of the parents should stay home and let the kids enjoy themselves playing ball.

My friend Jim Beebe of Wakefield is always impeccably dressed. He is like a page out of Esquire. The only publication that I have ever had my picture in was the centerfold of the Hobo-News.

I asked Mary McLaughlin, a beautiful FDA secretary, "Do you file your nails, Mary?" "No, Woodchipper," she replied, smiling. "I cut them off, then I throw them away."

I heard Terry O'Connor sing, and all I can say is, Terry, if you want to lose weight, "sing" for your supper.

Steve Sanders is not related to the fried chicken king, he has never had chicken pox and never uses "fowl" language — he is in fact a perfect gentleman.

Heaven help you if Gail Costello, attorney at law, is the opposing counselor in a case that you are interested in. Gail's articulate arguments, plus her beauty, would sway any juror.

A judge asked Fr. Bob Burns, "Are you a man of the cloth?" "No, your honor," replied Bob. "The 'Father' is an honorary title bestowed on me by my dear friends at the Woburn Elks." "Tell me," the judge continued, "have you been in this court before?" "Yes, your honor, I have." "In what suit?" Bob smiled then said, "I think it was my light brown suit, sir." It's a good thing the judge was Irish and had a keen sense of humor or he would have gotten a "light sentence" in a "dry cell" until the "charge" was dismissed.

Marion Lirakis, owner of the Marble Street Variety in Stoneham, is a wonderful person and a fan of Woodchips. I thank you, Marion, for distributing some of my poems to people in your area. You and many like you make writing Woodchips a pleasure.

Charlie Mullens, my mailman in Winchester, has a brother, John, who retired from the Boston Edison Co. John is the father of eight children. There was a time when John was afraid to come home and ask his wife, "What's new?"

Eli Whitney was a drinking man. He often shouted, "Get your hands off my 'cotton-picking' gin!"

"LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL"

A word about our business philosophy. We feel there are three key ingredients that make a fun time. The Disc Jockey, the music and most important of all - you! At our company we try never to lose sight of this fact and our years of experience have taught us that when you do a good job you'll be rewarded with new business. Yes, price is important, but as with all things in life it certainly shouldn't be the deciding factor. While we possess some of the most modern equipment available including lights etc., its really the music that makes the night, which is one reason we do not use pre-recorded tapes or other props - just records, literally thousands at your disposal. Our musical format includes songs from the 20's right up to today's hits. Naturally references are available and we've been critically acclaimed in Boston Globe Magazine and you'll also find us in Boston Magazine as well as local publications. By the way, no party is too large or small, we do them all - from a houseful to a hall full. We are also the wedding specialists. So there you have it. Great music and good times. Isn't that what your next function should be? "Let the Good Times Roll!" We play the music of your life. Call Paul Lazzara at 944-4617. You'll be glad you did!
